PROactive PRONUNCIATION

Voiceless “Th” End Sentences

Keith wanted a booth with a tablecloth

Beth threw a moth in the bath as a joke

That was the best Fourth of July on earth

Keith lost his breath as he walked down the North path

My son put his tooth beneath his pillow at night for the tooth fairy

She put the wreath out in the month of December to decorate for the holidays

Clean the cloth after your bubble bath

Both of us are focused on building wealth

Beth will increase the breadth of the article

It’s a myth, despite the depth of your argument

He’s a sleuth, uncouth, and a loud mouth

Go forth on your path to find faith in God

Even the filthy rich are afraid of death

That was the fourth time this month we assessed the growth, health, and wealth of this business

Mr. Smith found a moth on the North side of the hearth

He pledged an oath on the seventh day to abstain from drinking absinth

We use math to measure width and girth

The youth of this day are worth our attention

He lost the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth race

The mammoth had bad breath

The hot broth hurt every tooth in my mouth

I hid with my friend beneath the tablecloth