PROactive PRONUNCIATION

R+L Combination

When a word has an /r/ followed shortly by an /L/, you can add a slight quick vowel sound between them. Think of it as an “uh” sound as in uh-oh. So, the word “girl” might sound more like “ger uhl.” This applies to one syllable words. The other words, you just transition from an /r/ to an /L/ by not adding a vowel.
