PROactive PRONUNCIATION

“OH” Phrases

Beginning Phrases:

standing ovation
over and out
don’t overpay
overt versus covert
I owe you
he owns that orca
order it over again
orange oboe
organ donor
old omen
what an oaf!
that’s a huge oak tree
you live in an oasis!
I love oatmeal
omega 3 fatty acids are good for you I think that’s an omen that was a lie by omission it’s only 3 hours away
the onus is on you
the curtain is opaque
open the door
there’s an opium crisis Oprah’s a great interviewer my oral presentation is tomorrow this is the last orange I wish I played the organ as well as you she got a standing ovation I’m so over it do I owe you any change?
I own this one

Middle Phrases:

that’s the best approach it’s not good to boast what a fast boat that man was bold to say that throw him a bone
that’s a bonus!
both of my kids are in school close the door
I’m a soccer coach
coast to coast
put on your coat
it’s cold
don’t fold the dough
you look as white as a ghost they scored the final goal I want to go home
it’s lonely in this hotel that’s the most mold I’ve ever seen most motors don’t run that long I noticed my phone isn’t working I parked on the shoulder of the road soak the soap in water you could roast it or put it on the stove I told a total of two people

PROactive PRONUNCIATION

End Phrases:

that was long ago
I also came along to the show she dressed in camo for the hunt want to hear my demo song?
I heard an echo in the cave let your ego go
I want to go home
he's my hero
the hippo was named bongo I don't know the info on this topic we took a limo there your new logo is great the mango fell low to the ground I never put mayo on my nachos listen to the radio show I see so much snow
the solo artist is in the studio I went to Mexico to eat a taco and a nacho never throw a tomato I stubbed my toe
didn't you get the memo?
who has veto power?
I see zero signs of rain in the sky
I love to play Marco-Polo in the pool